Description

The certificate of practice (Praksisbrev) is a new pathway introduced in 2016, having been piloted and evaluated since 2008. It is a two-year practical training programme carried out in a company. Subjects comprise core components (work-oriented Norwegian, maths and social science) along with local components geared towards local labour demand.

Certificate of practice programmes are offered by counties: each county is obligated to offer at least one such programme. Certificates of practice are initially targeted at upper secondary school pupils who have low motivation for ordinary school and a greater interest in practical work, and whose profile (weak grades and/or high absenteeism despite having neither learning difficulties nor special education needs) suggests a high likelihood of underperforming/failing in regular programmes. However, the certificate of practice can also apply to adults, for example in the case of immigrants or low-educated adults who were previously unable to complete a trade or journeyman's certificate. After completing the certificate of practice, candidates can proceed towards a trade or journeyman's certificate.
