Background

During the Slovak Presidency in the Council of the EU in 2016, an agreement was reached between the Minister of Education and the Director of Cedefop on cooperation in the area of skills governance, where Slovakia was lagging behind other countries.

Objectives

Cedefop's tasks were as follows:

- (a) to organise consultations with stakeholders, including national and regional authorities, relevant public agencies, research organisations, employer representatives and trade union representatives;
- (b) to prepare a comprehensive overview of what policy-makers and practitioners in Slovakia think about the current situation;
- (c) to offer inputs to the discussion concerning ensuring effective links between the education and training system and the needs of the labour market, and suggest changes based on international expertise.

Description

Slovakia participates in Cedefop's country reviews on Governance of EU skills anticipation and matching systems. The aim of the project is to improve the management and coordination of skills anticipation efforts, making existing skills anticipation initiatives more useful for policy, and better linking skills intelligence to education and training. Within this cooperation, an initial country report was commissioned and offered for comment to the education ministry in February 2018; it was followed by interviews with stakeholders and those responsible for skills data collections.

2018 Design

First contacts between Cedefop experts and Slovak stakeholders were initiated. The national steering committee has been established.

2019 Design

After the meeting with policy-makers held on 4 April 2019, Cedefop worked on synthesising the information and identifying main areas of possible policy intervention and action that could be taken forward in the future. In December 2019, the draft final report Strengthening skills anticipation and matching in Slovakia: turning data into skills intelligence to support policy-makers and learners, was submitted for comment to the members of the National Steering Committee.

2020 Completed

In the first quarter of 2020, Cedefop consulted on the draft report with the National Steering Committee. The final report, Strengthening skills anticipation and matching in Slovakia, was published in September 2020. Three possible areas of intervention were identified: institutional foundations, skills governance processes, and sustainability of skills governance arrangements. Recommendations concerning these three areas were suggested.
