Background

Long-term unemployment is a significant challenge for the Latvian labour market, so a topical issue is the integration of the long-term unemployed into the labour market, as well as low motivation of the target population.

Objectives

To integrate the long-term unemployed into society by engaging them in permanent employment or relevant training, thus reducing a risk of social exclusion.

Description

In January 2016, the State Employment Agency (NVA) started the ESF 2016-21 project Support for the long-term unemployed. The target group of the project is those who have been unemployed for 12 months or more, or who have addiction problems that impede finding a job.

Professional rehabilitation for people with disabilities is provided by the Social Integration State Agency. In February 2017, the Cabinet of Ministers approved new procedures by which a person receives State-funded professional rehabilitation services and professional suitability determination services. Each programme participant is trained for a new profession, determined according to the type and level of functional disorders and their previous education and professional qualification. In September 2017, an amendment to the Procedures for organising and financing active employment measures was adopted by the Cabinet of Ministers, aiming to set requirements and costs for participation in the Motivational programme targeted at supporting long-term jobseekers with disabilities. This programme, and a social mentor's support, are part of the ESF project Support for long-term unemployed (2015-21) implemented by NVA (the State Employment Agency). The Regulations also stipulate that:

- (a) a support assistant is provided to the disabled by the local government;
- (b) sign-language services are provided;
- (c) special transport expenses for the young unemployed person with disabilities are

- covered;
- (d) personal support services for persons with mental disabilities are covered by the practice places.

In 2017, the Government amended the Youth guarantee scheme, introducing measures for the validation of competences acquired through non-formal and informal learning as well as specific support measures for learners with disabilities (mental disorders), including grants for the purchase of equipment and technical aids to adapt learning places.
