

Training actions in work situations (AFEST)

POLICY DEVELOPMENT

PRACTICAL MEASURE/INITIATIVE

 FRANCE

Timeline

ID number 28222

Background

The on-the-job training (Action de formation en situation de travail, AFEST), a pilot followed by its recognition as a modality of training action by law in 2018, targets employees who are not served by traditional schooling (employees who are uninterested in or unsuited for classroom learning), and small companies (who struggle to give employees time off for training).

Objectives

The policy aims to:

- (a) reduce inequalities in access to training for low qualified workers and ease (re)training and skills acquisition;
- (b) support the transformation of companies, building employee loyalty and improve risk prevention.

Description

In July 2018, a report was published detailing the results of a pilot initiative launched in 2015 that explored new approaches for work-based learning through scheduled and guided on-the-job training. This pilot involved collaboration between the Ministry of Labour and stakeholders such as social partners, the National Employment, Training and Vocational Guidance Council (CNEFOP), the National Agency for the Improvement of Working Conditions (ANACT), and training funds (OPCAs). The initiative aimed to develop training actions in real work situations (Action de formation en situation de travail, AFEST), specifically targeting low-skilled employees in small- and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs). By 2018, the pilot had established 21 projects that involved 11 of the 20 OPCAs across the country.

Following the 2018 Law on the freedom to choose one's professional future (reforming continuing vocational training) and based on the pilot carried out from 2015 to 2018, a 2018 decree set out the conditions for training actions in work situations (AFEST). By including on-the-job training (AFEST) as a new educational method to be funded by pooled funds, the legislators recognised that work can act as a training modality. Certain conditions apply:

- (a) prior analysis of the work activity in order to adapt it for pedagogical purposes, where necessary;
- (b) prior appointment of a trainer able to perform a tutoring function;
- (c) implementation of reflective phases, distinct from work situations and intended to use the lessons learned from the work situation for pedagogical purposes, so that those involved can identify and analyse any gaps between expectations, achievements and outcomes, in order to consolidate and explicitly set out what has been learned;
- (d) evaluation of the learning outcomes to conclude the action.

2019 Implementation

Continued deployment of AFEST as a training method: AFEST in companies with fewer than 50 employees can be financed using funds pooled by the skills operators (OPCO).

2020 Implementation

The measures are operational and run as regular practice.

2021 Implementation

The Ministry of Labour is following a number of pilots relating to:

- (a) the interaction of AFEST/professionalisation contracts;
- (b) how the on-the-job training pedagogy (that has a broader scope than the AFEST framework, which defines a category of training actions) can support apprenticeship provision, such as the Adapted training in work situations for apprentices with disabilities scheme developed (in the CFAS Occitanie Ouest and the 2APH Network) within the 2021 skills development call for proposals of the Association for the management of funds for the professional integration of people with disabilities (Association de gestion du fonds pour l'insertion des personnes handicapées, AGEFIPH).

The Ministry of Labour supports AFEST projects in the professional branches through its dedicated commitment to develop employment and skills (engagements de développement de l'emploi et des compétences, EDEC), which are contracts signed between the State and some businesses to support their HR capacities.

Some qualifications relating to the tasks of AFEST counsellors for companies and individuals have been included in the national register of professional certifications (RNCP) and the specific register (RS): counsellor for VAE and AFEST pathways (RNCP); advice/support to companies; implementing and making an AFEST/AFEST advisor; guidance and support for AFEST beneficiaries (RS).

During the COVID-19 crisis, many AFEST projects in companies were postponed.

Finally, the 2021 report on collective bargaining lists 10 agreements that explicitly mention support for the introduction of on-the-job training.

2022 Implementation

From 2022 this policy development is part of the National Implementation Plan (NIP), measure 'Develop all forms of training and particularly work-based training', action 'Legal recognition of on-the-job training'.

The public employment service operator Pôle Emploi is launching a new service package dedicated to on-the-job training scheme, in order to promote this new approach to learning which focuses on 'learning by doing' directly in the individual's future workplace. As part of the plan to tackle hiring difficulties in VSEs and SMEs, the AFEST initiative is aimed primarily at long-term jobseekers in five target areas: industry, retail, construction, care giving and corporate services. More specifically, Pôle Emploi advisors recommends that companies use AFEST as part of their pre-employment training.

A brochure, An exploration of work-based training in Europe and elsewhere, has been produced as part of the European Agenda for Adult Learning (EAAL) activities, as well as a flyer entitled 'What is work-based training?', which includes resources for business leaders, especially those running SMEs and VSEs, who in many cases have no HR department.

2023 Implementation

3 workshops were dedicated to AFEST at the winter vocational training conference (UHFP, organised by Centre Inffo in January 2023 in Cannes, event which attracted 1 500 participants, policy makers, stakeholders and business professionals).

2024 Implementation

A regional example of this initiative is found in the Nouvelle-Aquitaine region, which has extended its call for projects until 2025. The objective is to support businesses in their recruitment efforts by training job seekers directly at the workplace, thereby facilitating the acquisition of skills that meet the immediate needs of employers. The primary beneficiaries of this program are individuals with low qualifications residing in Nouvelle-Aquitaine, particularly those living in priority neighborhoods or rural areas.

On a sectoral level, the skills operator OPCO Uniformation, in the social sector, provides its member employers with a range of services to facilitate their AFEST projects. This includes organising thematic webinars, offering a list of recognised experts, financing a diagnostic assessment of the AFEST project, and providing access to 'turnkey' training offerings tailored to specific industries and the size of the organisation. Additionally, OPCO Uniformation supplies a comprehensive kit that includes practical guides, detailed methodological sheets for each step, and downloadable tools.
