

The situation of young people in the EU

Insights from the 2024 EU youth report

Description

The report provides a comprehensive overview of the multifaceted challenges and opportunities faced by young people in the European Union. It covers key areas such as demographics, political participation, employment, education, social inclusion, health, and environmental activism. It highlights the declining youth population, the significant role of education and digital skills, the impact of climate change on youth perspectives, and the persistent issues of unemployment and social exclusion. It underscores the importance of youth engagement in political and community activities, the need for better mental health support, and the growing emphasis on green skills and sustainability in education.
