

The importance of the social and emotional competencies of educational staff

Description

This paper discusses the teacher's social and emotional competencies and how they are linked to healthy student-teacher relationships.

Such competencies of the teacher can be acquired in pre-service or in-service teacher education.

Read the publication in the link below.

Countries

 EU level

Downloads

The importance of the social and emotional competencies of educational staff

EN