Question No 1

We are leading a consortium to tender for this contract.

I understand that the tender must be submitted in paper format. Must all the signatures that are required be written on the paper documents submitted, or can we use electronic signatures on documents received as email attachments that we then print out?

Cedefop's answer to question No 1

All the signed documents submitted by the consortium leader must be in original format. In the case of consortium members, they may submit their signed documents (coloured and pdf) via e-mail to you. In the case of contract award, Cedefop reserves the right to ask also the signed original documents from the consortium members.
