The study will map and analyse how learning outcomes approaches are influencing European education and training policies and practices. The study will cover the 33 countries taking part in the E&T 2020 process and aims in particular to gather evidence on developments in the last 5 years and the impact of these on lifelong and life-wide learning. The study seeks to better understand how the application of learning outcomes differs between countries and subsystems of education and training (i.e. higher education, VET, general education, adult education). While an important objective of the study is to provide overview over policy developments, 10 case studies in 5 selected countries will allow for more detailed in-depth analysis and empirical research on how learning outcomes approaches are interpreted and applied by institutions providing initial education of teachers and (a selection of) students enrolled in these programmes.
