 MALTA

Current position

Vice Principal

Malta College of Arts, Science and Technology (MCAST)

Born in 1959 in Malta. Graduated in electrical engineering from the University of Malta in 1980 and subsequently furthered my studies in electronic engineering and management in the US and UK (University of California and Brunel University). I worked as an engineer and manager in the semiconductor industry (ST Microelectronics) for twenty three years. In 2004 I joined the newly formed college of Further Education (MCAST) as a lecturer. Eventually I progressed to higher managerial positions and currently I occupy the position of Vice Principal in a college that today spans a very wide spectrum of vocational education and offers also Higher education qualifications. For the past decade I have been very actively involved in the development of vocational education in my country representing both my Institution and Government.
