

PERSONAL INFORMATION

 Francesco Lauria

Born in Parma (Italy) in 1979, graduated in International and Diplomatic Sciences at the University of Trieste, he received a PhD in Industrial Relations from the University of Modena and Reggio Emilia and a degree in adult education at the University of Lille (France).

From 2005 he began to collaborate with the Cesos (Center for Economic and Social Studies) in the field of integration policies and social cohesion and economic democracy. Subsequently he moved to the national headquarters of CISL (second Italian trade union confederation), becoming technical responsible for labour market policies, fight against undeclared work, vocational training policies, research and education.

In 2010, representing Italian trade unions CGIL CISL UIL, he was among the negotiators of the framework agreement on the "inclusive labour market" signed by the European Trade Union Confederation and Business Europe.

In 2012 he was appointed a full member of the technical group promoted by the Italian Government for the realization of the repertoire of professions within the provisions of the Apprenticeship Italian Code.

From 2013 to 2016 he was full member of ACVT (European Advisory Committee for Vocational Training), actually, he is member of Etuc Education and Training Committee.

Eurotrainer, is responsible for the CISL for European training, project management and research

He is also a journalist and vice-director of the On Line review of Ezio Tarantelli Foundation.

He is the author of numerous essays and publications on labour law, vocational and continuous training and industrial relations.

Current position

Replace with occupation or position held

CISL, Rome-Florence (Italy).